REFORM IN HARVARD COLLEGE.

Among the many important practical measures and enactments of the last Legislature of Massachusetts, no one stands now more prominent, or will be regarded hereafter as more pub-licly beneficial, than the reform in the government of Harvard University. Though some-what distinct in its nature, when politically viewed, from the other leading measures of the session, yet it partakes in a high degree, of a publieve, to shed the most extensive and benign in- arrested." fluences, not only upon our own community, but upon New England at large, and even the Union itself.

It is well known that for years this ancient and munificent institution, which the venerated fathers of New England designed and characterized in its establishment as "a house of learn-ing for the education of the people," has been the subject of a rigid conservatism in public economy and literature, stongly sectarian in morals and religion, unfavorable in its facilities for knowledge and instruction, from its exclusive and expensive policy and administration, and dead in its pulsations with the popular sympathies and impulses, and the progressive spirit and tendencies of the age. Founded by the State, and endowed and cherished freely and warmly by its liberality, from its earliest existence, it had become an object of complaint and distrust to the people from the causes we have mentioned; and though a large majority of the citizens of the state have long deisired an infusion of popular feeling and spirit in its government and policy, yet the garb of constitutional sanctity in which it had assumed to enfold itself. and the web of legal technicalities which it had drawn around it, seemed to hedge up the way of reforming it with most imposing difficulties, and disheartened the public mind from engaging actively and unitedly in the attempt. Until the passage of the act of last session versity, its government was lodged in a Board Governor, the Senate of the State, the Governor's Council, Speaker of the House, the Presi- that purpose. dent of the College, elected by the College corporation, and thirty permanent members, fifteen cierical and fifteen lay, elected by the Board of eral. Under the new law, it should be univer-Overseers themselves as vacancies occurred, and sal. [Det. Tribune. feelings could be but feebly and inadequately exercised and made of any practical and salutary effect. By the new enactment, the Board of Overseers is to consist of the Governor, the Lieut. Governor, President of the Senate, Speaker of the House, the Secretary of the Board of Education, the President and Treasurer of the College for the time being, and thirty elective members chosen by the Legislature from the State at large, irrespective of lay or clerical character, in conformity to the number elected by the Board of Overseers under the former system-ten of which number are to be elected annually, commencing with the next Legislature, and to be so elected annually, by tens, until the present thirty members elected permanently by the old Beard of Overseers shall have been wholly displaced, after which the said thirty elective members are to be sub-divided into six classes of five each, one of which class is thereafterwards to go out of office annually, and their number and places to be supplied by each annual Legislature, to be chosen in joint convention of both branches from the ranks of the

Under the new system, the government of the College will be brought most directly under the control of the people of the State through the medium of their legislative agents, and can be made the true and regular index and reflection of the popular feeling and sentiment-whereby the Institution will become, in accordance with the design of its worthy and devoted founders, and with the will of the people of the State, as expressed through their legislators in 1827, the efficient nursery of " the principles of piety, (untainted by sectarianism,) justice, and sacred regard to truth, love of country, humanity, and universal benevolence, sobriety, moderation and temperance, and those other virtues which are the ornament of human society, and the basis upon which the republican constitution is foun-

The great, beneficent and truly philanthropic change in the government of the University has been accomplished only by years of most active labor and importunate solicitation with the legislative power of the State, on the part of a single individual, Rev. Rodney A. Miller, of the city of Worcester. Mr. Miller, we believe, is a native of the State of New York, but has long been a citizen of Massachusetts, and a resident in Worcester, and was for many years pastor of the First Congregational Society in this place. He is a gentleman of strong native endowment, of great moral courage and energy, of sound popular and progressive principles, a scholar of substantial and fine classical attainments, and in his religious tenets an ardent, consistent, and inof great moral courage and energy, of sound popular and progressive principles, a scholar of his religious tenets an ardent, consistent, and inflexible disciple of the old Puritan school. In dell, 81,000 ft. lumber, 24,000 lath. the winter of 1843, he was chosen a member of the Board of Overseers of Harvard College .-Upon entering upon his duties in that capacity, he soon became sensible of the true governmental condition and popular deficiencies of the college-of its sectarian perversion and tendencies-of its expensive and necessarily exclusive character and administration, its limited number of students, and its rapidly decreasing complement of graduates. He immediately took upon himsef the labor of endeavoring to restore the institution to its original and popular character, and at the January session of the Board of Overseers in 1844, he introduced the following Negritary and commandable resolution. Staves, 84 to 5 pr. M. pertinent and commendable resolution:

"Resolved, That the Committee of General Visitation of Harvard College, be instructed to institute a comparison between the expenses of the education of the undergraduates of this and similar institutions in New England, and see if something cannot be done to diminish those expenses, and report at the next meeting.'

PLOT AGAINST KOSSUTH .- A correspondent writing from Constantinople, May, 17th, says: "Just now a plot has been discovered for the death of Kossuth. Some Slayvonians were employed (by Austrians no doubt) to go to Kutayeh where he is confined, and pretend to assist him and his companions in making their escape: then, in their attempt to escape, they were to be shot. > New Mexico.—The St. Louis papers contain the message of Gov. Calhoun, of New Mexico, to the Legislature of that Territory, which convened at Santa Fe on the second day of June. It is a very short document and confined principally to the affairs of the Territory. The Gov-ernor asks the Legislature to pass a law defining the positions of masters and peons; so that each should properly understand his obligations. He asks that free negroes may be kept out of the Territory by Legislative enactment. [Chicago Journal.

The gallant managers of the Michigan Central Railroad Company have tendered to Jenny Lind and suit a passage on their boats from Buffalo to this city. She has not yet fully derided whether she will return to New York from Niagara Falls or come to Detroit. The Buffalo Commercial says: "In all probability she will, however, visit Detroit, but will proceed no further west. There is no doubt but she will go up in the course of the present season on one of the steamers of the Line."
